Measurement Scale Fact Sheet

Index of Brother and Sister Relations (IBR and ISR)

The Index of Brother Relations, or IBR, and the Index of Sister Relations, or ISR, scales were designed to measure the degree or magnitude of problems clients have in their relationship with their brother or sister. The IBR scale is completed by a client to indicate problems in a relationship with a brother, while the ISR is used to indicate problems in a relationship with a sister.

Score Interpretation

The scale produces scores that range from 0 to 100. For all practical purposes the scores can be regarded as true ratio scale values. A score of 0 indicates the client has none of the attributes, and a score of 100 represents the highest possible to stress level the scale is capable of measuring.

Cutting Scores

This scale has two clinical cutting scores. The first is a score of 30. Clients who score below 30, assuming accurate and candid responses, can be presumed to be free of a clinically significant problem in this area. Clients who score above 30 can be presumed to have a clinically significant problem in this area.

The second cutting score is 70. Clients who achieve scores this large or larger are nearly always experiencing severe distress. When distress reaches this level, there is a clear possibility that some form of violence could be considered or used as a means of dealing with problems in this area. The therapist or counselor should not assume that violence is in the offing. However, it is a distinct possibility, and it should be investigated by the service provider.

Reliability

This scale consistently achieves an Alpha coefficient of .90 or larger.

Validity

This scale has been investigated with respect to content, construct, factorial, and known groups validity. It nearly always achieves validity coefficients of .60 or greater.

Readability Statistics

Flesch Reading Ease: 84; Gunning's Fog Index: 6; Flesch-Kincaid Grade Level: 4.
